Margaret M. McMahon has always collected family stories. She has a PhD in Computer Science and Engineering, with over twenty-five years of engineering experience, and was a college professor. She is an experienced presenter, speaking at national and international technical conferences. With the advent of parenthood, she turned her technical talents to researching her family's genealogy.

Dr. McMahon has been an invited speaker at several branches of the Anne Arundel County Public Library and at other genealogical societies. Her lectures and classes have been well received. Some recent topics were: Google for Genealogists, Social Networking for Genealogists, Census Research, and Genealogy Databases. She is open to providing a presentation on other topics in genealogy.

To be added to a mailing list for announcements about the book's publication, and future speaking engagements, please contact Dr. Mac at: aweekofgenealogy@gmail.com
